Top End Bub

After a family tragedy, high-flying lawyer Lauren and her husband Ned abandon city life and return to the tropical north of Australia, where they become guardians of Lauren's orphaned niece, Taya.

Parenting isn't easy – Ned starts a food truck while Lauren juggles legal work, all while living with Lauren's parents, Daffy and Trevor, who are rekindling their spark.

Lauren seeks Taya's biological father. With help from a mysterious Cowboy, she finds Jarad, a Tiwi man, and feels Taya should know her heritage, straining her relationship with Ned.

As a cyclone batters the Top End, Taya is in Tiwi with Jarad, while Lauren, Ned, Daffy, and Trevor wait in Darwin. Fears surface – Ned dreads losing Taya, while Lauren struggles with culture and family. Reunited post-storm, Lauren and Ned reconnect – until another twist... Lauren thinks she may be pregnant!

Lume

Lucía, a Galician journalist in Lisbon, returns to her hometown of Seara to report on a devastating forest fire. But for her, it's personal.

Her father, Afonso, the 'Abaneiro', was accused of arson 30 years ago, and the fire killed a child. Lucía believes he was innocent and took his life in prison for a crime he didn't commit. Returning to Seara means confronting painful memories and a village that still sees her as the daughter of a criminal.

Met with hostility, she finds an ally in Júlio, a discreet Portuguese National Republican Guard corporal. As their attraction grows, he helps her investigate. With Agent Salgueiro, she reveals a cover-up: the fire's cause is being concealed, and its pattern matches the one pinned on her father.

Determined to expose the truth, Lucía follows a trail that leads to a shell company acquiring burned land for a wind farm – as was the case 30 years ago. With help from Ana, a Galician intern at a small newspaper, and Xan, a teenage hacker, she begins to unravel a web of corruption. The scheme involves politicians and businessmen who have shaped the region's fate for decades, including high-ranking Portuguese official Armando Sá Silva and Seara's mayor, Iolanda.

Meanwhile, the police investigate the suspicious death of Martim, a botanist whose research may hold the key to the mystery. As Lucía gets closer to the truth, she realises that the same powerful forces that framed her father are still at work – and they will do whatever it takes to keep their secrets buried.

The King of Šumava

The King of Šumava is an enthralling adaptation of David Jan Žák's acclaimed novel The Return of the Šumava King. Set against the backdrop of post-war Czechoslovakia in the spring of 1948, the story follows the gripping journey of Josef Hasil, a 24-year-old cook in the National Security Corps. Having survived the war in a German labour camp and fought alongside partisans, Hasil has no interest in politics. However, as the Iron Curtain descends, the rapidly closing borders and looming fears of World War III thrust him into the perilous world of smuggling. Hasil's unparalleled knowledge of the Šumava mountains enables him to navigate the treacherous path from East to West, making him an invaluable asset to those seeking freedom. The series meticulously recreates this tense period, drawing from Hasil's personal memories, eyewitness testimonies, and archival documents, bringing a true story of resilience and courage to life.

We're on it, Comrades

David works at the Institute of Paranormal Phenomena and is a sceptic. His job is to investigate paranormal phenomena, but he doesn't believe in such nonsense. If a UFO abducts a respectable fellow citizen, a puppet kills a ventriloquist, a goat monster attacks a tramp settlement or a saint spontaneously self-ignites, David is convinced that there is nothing behind it all but ordinary human deception.

It's the 80s and there are a lot of annoying people out there calling each other 'comrade'. David prefers to sit in the comfort of his office, pretending to be researching satanic references in western music and enjoying listening to LPs that no one else in the country has.

The world would be beautiful, but the director of the Institute of Paranormal Phenomena, his superior, puts a new colleague Vojta in his office. And this overly motivated newcomer has a lot to say: how it's necessary to push the boundaries of human knowledge and that science apparently doesn't yet have the answers to all the mysteries of the world.

This mismatched pair have no choice but to work together to investigate bizarre cases that all the other security forces in the state fall short on. And to make sure that their lives aren't unnecessarily easy, two secret police agents are constantly breathing down their neck – tough agent Snížková and sweetheart Hora.

White Night | S02

A dramatic, gripping family saga, concurrent storylines run past and present as White Night Season two takes us back to the 80s. No longer satisfied with her modelling career, Louise Hébert-Lacombe's (Rose-Marie Perreault) dreams of setting up a cosmetics company with her friend and former neighbour Jacinthe. Thanks in part to mentor Aidrian, Nocturne was born, developing into a powerhouse cosmetic industry empire. In her relentless pursuit of opulence, fame, and power, Louise must face major adverse events, maturing into present-day Loulou (France Castel). Meanwhile, Aidrian, obsessed with protecting and further propelling Loulou's success, lets himself be dominated more and more by his dark side. Murdered on the eve of the launch of her new fragrance, the Hébert clan embarks on a pursuit to find LouLou's killer. Though seemingly solved, it appears that Clémence killed Loulou. What Aidrian and the Hébert children don't know, but soon realise, is that Clémence did not act alone but had an accomplice. Familial bonds fray in their pursuit of this other culprit, with the Hébert clan beginning to tear each other apart. Revelations highlight cracks in each of the characters, generating suspicion, betrayal and shameful secrets that severely test family loyalty and lay a web of self-destruction. Thrown into situations that force them to cross boundaries, their decisions could have serious consequences that may forever undermine the ties that bind them. Will the clan survive the ordeal?

Get ready for the vibrant Seventies!

The hit series Ku'damm is back for its highly anticipated fourth season, stepping into a new era: the groovy, rebellious Seventies.

Boundless

Rejected by the King of Portugal to finance an expedition to mythical lands in pursuit of priceless spices, explorer Ferdinand Magellan convinces the Spanish Crown to fund the mission that will take an unexplored ocean route west.

Setting sail 500 years ago with 5 Spanish ships and a crew of 265 men, including commander and former prisoner Juan Sebastián Elcano, Magellan's journey would face sabotage by the Portuguese, as well as hostile Spanish foes. With unimaginable suffering – starvation, death and punishing weather – sailors resorted to mutiny after a year at sea until finally finding the Strait of Magellan. A critical juncture after reaching the Philippines would test leadership, requiring captain and crew to battle the indigenous tribes, resulting in disastrous losses before continuing their journey.

Former anti-hero, Elcano, not Magellan, would lead the expedition to glory, returning 3 years later with 18 survivors and a hull full of spices, as captain of one of the greatest navigational triumphs. This legacy of traveling to the Earth's unknown ends would change man's perception of the world and the existence of an ocean route west.

Directed by Simon West (producer of Oscar-nominated Black Hawk Down), Boundless features high production values shot in locales including the Dominican Republic, the Basque Country, Madrid and Seville.

Concordia

Concordia is the municipality of the future: a town that employs cutting-edge AI technology to create a freer, fairer, and more humane society. It welcomes people from all walks of life and of all persuasions. One's privacy is one's right, and the data gathered from Concordia's cameras is used to better the collective and never to infringe upon individuals' rights or freedoms. Its leadership's sole goal is to bring together an increasingly divided world, to redefine society as a unified and cohesive community.

By its 20th anniversary, Concordia is thriving. On the verge of expansion, twin catastrophes strike: the first ever murder and a hack of its AI tech. The teams race to solve both crimes, but find themselves staring down a deeply disturbing original sin that undermines the promise of Concordia far more than any hack ever could...

SUPERmad

27-year-old Amelie works as a maid at Berlin's prestigious Reichenberg Hotel, juggling a demanding but underpaid job, a difficult boss and an unusual side hustle – providing 'extra services' for wealthy guests who tip generously. Living with her sharp-tongued grandmother, she longs to escape. Her closest allies are Tristan, a hotel security guard, and Johanna, a freelance sex worker who moves through the hotel as she pleases.

One night, Amelie is raped by a hotel guest in the staff kitchen. Her anonymous attacker vanishes, leaving her shattered – but something inside her awakens. Her trauma unlocks extraordinary abilities: superhuman strength, telekinesis and an unsettling gift – she can see sex offenders through a heatwave-like aura and, with a touch, relive their crimes. With Tristan and Johanna by her side, she turns the Reichenberg Hotel into her hunting ground, exposing abusers in viral videos where she forces them to admit their crimes. Soon, her vigilante persona 'Hysteria' gains notoriety.

Fuelled by rage, Amelie's pursuit of justice spirals into vengeance, pushing her to brutal extremes. When she encounters her own rapist, her powers – and her mind – begin to unravel. Consumed by anger, she loses control, even hurting those she loves. As friends and the public challenge her, Amelie faces a painful truth: she cannot carry the weight of countless victims alone. To truly heal, she must reclaim herself first.

But can Amelie use her powers to heal, or will she remain trapped in a cycle of vengeance?

Hameln

In Hameln, a peaceful town in medieval Germany, the insidious Pied Piper abducted 130 children and youths. Eight centuries later, he has returned to the town to once again bring horror and death to the city. Only the blind Finja, the deaf Jannik and the monoplegic Ruben can stop him and his eerie army of dead children's souls.

At a cinema in modern-day Hameln, Jannik meets Finja, and instantly recognises her from a nightmare he has had – Finja, a boy with walking difficulties and himself were back in the medieval era, running through the forests of Hameln away from something insidious lurking in the trees. After Jannik tells Finja about his dream, she dismisses the strange story, wrongly assuming it was an attempt at flirting. But it's not long until she realises that within Jannik's dream lies an unfathomable truth.

Meanwhile, Finja's father, Peter Roth, a child therapist, is baffled as young people – including his patients – begin murdering their parents in a violent frenzy. As Finja pieces together her connection to Jannik, Ruben, and the Pied Piper's ancient crime, she discovers the horrifying cause of the killings – the souls of the long-dead children have returned, seeking vengeance on the adults they blame for their deaths.

But their wrath towards Finja, Jannik and Ruben is even more personal. And the possessed children's violence is only the beginning – something even more terrifying is coming. The Pied Piper is back.

Love Sucks

Set against the backdrop of blood lust and the neon lights of a fairground, a murderous family feud stands in the way of true love.

Trained as a boxer by her father, tough Zelda fights in the family boxing ring against fairground visitors who dare to take her on. One night as she strolls through the crowds at the fair, she locks eyes with a stranger – Ben. Ben is sensitive, sophisticated and nothing like his brother, the dark and devious Theo. As the brothers enter the boxing tent, Theo convinces Ben to fight. As he stands in the ring, Ben sees Zelda for the second time that night – she is his opponent. They fight each other tooth and nail until he blacks out on the floor.

Later, having overheard that the brothers are having a party at their family home, Zelda stands before the door of a large gothic mansion. Inside, the lights are flashing, the beat of the music is intense and through the haze of the smoke, she can see young bodies writhing and grinding. She finds Ben and as they dance, their lips almost meet until all hell breaks loose. Through the flashing of lights, she sees pointed teeth and bitten necks – vampires!

Zelda escapes and makes it home, clothes soaked in blood and in total shock. When her father and brother find out what happened, they reveal the truth to her – Zelda's family are vampire slayers, and they need to kill Ben's family before it's too late. While the tension between the two families grows, Ben and Zelda continue to meet in secret and begin to fall in love. But does their love stand a chance against the brutal feud of their families?

Feelings

In this moody and atmospheric coming-of-age story, a teenager traverses friendship, self-doubts and love in a secluded village deep in a mystical forest. But as a mysterious darkness that hides in the woods begins to creep out, the line between reality and fantasy begins to fade.

After her father decides to relocate them from the city to the village of Lohweide, social misfit Alva (16) is far from pleased with her new surroundings. She is having trouble finding her place in the close-knit community, especially when stories about her missing uncle begin to circulate, making her feel more alone than ever before.

That is until she meets Esma (17). With notable make-up and a self-assured attitude, Esma is one of a kind. Unlike Alva, Esma doesn't care about fitting in. Encouraged by their developing friendship, Alva is trying to let go of the difficult life she left behind and as her feelings towards Esma begin to intensify, Alva realises she's in love.

But her hopes of a genuine connection are overshadowed by strange goings-on in the forest. There is something there that seems to call to Alva. She sees an ominous glow between the trees, curious mushrooms and a dark shadow that is frightening her. As the forest beckons her in, Alva senses that something is terribly wrong.

With an innovative multi-platform distribution, Feelings is a coming-of-age mystery series aimed at teenagers and young adults between the ages of 14 and 20.

Things We Fear

In an effort to help calm her worsening panic attacks, 17-year-old Lisa moves to the Black Forest with her mother Franka. But their new beginning in the secluded town is overshadowed by sinister events. It's been exactly a year since a deadly shooting occurred at the local school. And on the day of the anniversary, the suicide of a police officer sends another shock wave through the town.

Franka is puzzled by the events and having started her new role in the local police force, she begins investigating but soon hits a brick wall. Franka is not the only one up against it – Lisa is haunted by eerie apparitions as the spirits of the dead try to communicate with her. Determined to find out what they want, she delves into the past.

Meanwhile, the son of the local pastor of a small free church community, Simon, is dealing with his father's disapproval of his homosexuality, and faces conversion therapy in a nearby place in the woods called 'The Waldhaus'. But soon the cruel methods of the therapy leader become unbearable, and Simon tries to escape. As Franka presses ahead with her investigation, everything seems to lead to "The Waldhaus". But as she arrives there, she finds herself in unexpected danger.

Back at school, Lisa is gradually able to piece together the puzzle of the shooting. She realises what really happened a year ago – and that the danger has not yet been averted. In a dramatic confrontation in the catacombs of the school, she not only has to confront the real perpetrator, but also the dead.

The Puzzle Lady

When a strange murder takes place in the sleepy market town of Bakerbury, the local police are baffled by a crossword puzzle clue left on the body. Fortunately, the famous cruciverbalist Cora Felton, known as The Puzzle Lady, has just moved to town with her long-suffering niece, Sherry Carter. Behind the cosy façade of a demure older lady – an image that markets her best-selling crossword column and a popular brand of biscuits – is a chain-smoking, wisecracking, borderline alcoholic. Not only is the persona of eccentric old Cora a lie, she isn't the puzzle expert, she's actually a fraudulent frontwoman for Sherry, the real puzzle expert, whose brilliant crossword puzzles have become a national sensation. Despite her lack of expertise, Cora cannot help but turn enthusiastically to amateur sleuthing, much to the chagrin of Detective Chief Inspector Hooper who wishes he'd never involved her in the first place!

Hooper holds the most senior rank in a woe-fully understaffed local police station. He's a perfectly competent DCI, but has had very little experience with serious crime, particularly murder – until now. He moans when Cora sticks her nose in his cases, but forgives her because she always saves the day in the end. Not only does Cora crack this murder case, she discovers a knack for solving murders, and as it turns out, Bakerbury isn't as sleepy as it looks.

The Markovič Method

Set during the normalisation era of Czechoslovakia, this new six-part miniseries entitled The Markovič Method: Hojer tells the story of the apprehension and conviction of one of the most terrifying serial killers of the time, Ladislav Hojer, by the legendary detective Jiří Markovič.

At the turn of the 1980s, Prague is a very hostile place, drab and run-down. Muted crowds form orderly lines in front of half-empty stores whilst vibrant posters plastered on the walls of battered houses commemorate an infamous anniversary. It's in this bleak, grey setting where a chilling new phenomenon emerges in the streets at night – young sexual assailants with sadistic tendencies. It was precisely these individuals that Jiří Markovič relentlessly pursued throughout his extensive career. The series not only delves into the investigation and apprehension of Ladislav Hojer and his unique connection with his investigator but also weaves closed cases from various points in Markovič's career into every episode. These cases held paramount importance in his journey as an elite investigator, illustrating how his method evolved during this specific period that made him so distinctive. Thus, the legend of Markovič was born.

Detective von Fock

Estonia, 1820s. The Baltic German nobility has largely retained its autonomy within the Russian Empire. Some of the estates are wealthier than small German principalities. Many struggle – luxuries and lavish lifestyles, drinking and gambling put a strain on the family budgets. Younger brothers are often left empty-handed, joining the Russian army or learning a trade to earn an income. And among the ethnic Estonians, national awakening is stirring.

Paul von Fock, the youngest of three brothers, has recently inherited the prosperous Sagadi manor – much to the surprise of his social circle, of which he is not the most popular member, and the middle son Ferdinand, whose vanity could use a higher income.

When Paul is elected the assessor of the local court by the Knighthood, he doesn't expect to solve anything beyond pub brawls and petty disputes between neighbours. But when the murder of his childhood bully, notorious swindler Justus von Brevern, becomes his first case, the extent of his responsibility suddenly dawns on him. Paul enlists the help of Gerhard Wagner, his university friend and governor, who starts off as a rather unwilling, but eventually useful sidekick, and must resign himself to the help of Maria von Nottbeck, his childhood friend and notorious femme fatale, who will accept any entertainment she can find in this periphery of Europe after returning from her adventures abroad.

These two are clearly meant for each other, but whatever mess Maria has got herself into during her travels is still haunting her, and figuring her out proves the toughest case Paul will face.

Summer Forever

In these two gripping crime thrillers, German police officer Sophie Maibach is assigned to Tenerife as part of a German-Spanish exchange programme. Expecting a quiet job dealing with German tourists, endless sunshine and post-shift surf sessions, Sophie quickly realises her new role is anything but routine. Partnered with the sharp-witted Álvaro Krupp-Casado, she is thrust into a series of cases that test both her instincts and her past.

When an injured German woman is found in the desert, her fragmented memories slowly return, leading to a shocking claim – her fiancé tried to kill her. But as Sophie digs deeper, she senses there's more to the story than meets the eye. At the same time, a hit-and-run case reopens an old wound: five years ago, her father was killed in a similar accident. Clues point to Tenerife, and Sophie launches a secret investigation, determined to track down the person responsible and finally find closure.

Her pursuit of justice intensifies in the second film as she juggles her police work with her personal vendetta. When a 13-year-old girl disappears amid a bitter custody battle, she and Álvaro race against time to find her. But Sophie's true obsession remains her father's death. Suspicion falls on Caro Lüttich, a charismatic beach bar owner with a mysterious past. To get closer to the truth, Sophie befriends Caro – only to find herself increasingly drawn to her. As the lines between duty and desire blur, Sophie must ask herself: how far is she willing to go to uncover the truth?

Weiss & Morales

Nina Weiss, a BKA agent, is visiting her mother Margarethe, a German expat on the Canary Islands. She arrives unannounced, searching for answers about her past. When a German citizen is found dead, Nina becomes involved in the investigation alongside Raúl Morales, the Civil Guard sergeant in charge of the case. Despite their opposing personalities and investigation methods, they will have to compromise. Weiss is a meticulous observer whose strength is finding clues in occasionally unnoticed details. Sarah Kohr

In this heart-stopping thriller series, tough and often unscrupulous detective Sarah Kohr disregards conventions and is unafraid of getting physical with perpetrators. Using her combat skills and her intuitive investigative prowess to solve crimes, Sarah never lets fear stand in her way.

Each episode of Sarah Kohr is unique and unpredictable as Sarah and her team face off against dangerous and delusional covid deniers, arms dealers and terrorists. In an adrenaline-filled whirlwind of action, we see Sarah going undercover as an assassin; being taken hostage by an escaped convict and even shooting an underage perpetrator in self-defence.

Though sometimes the crimes can be a little too close to home for Sarah, she is used to life on the edge with killers and criminals forever hot on her trail. But will she always be able to keep one step ahead?

Beyond the River

Robert Heffler is a single father of three daughters. After a dramatic mission three years ago he asked – for personal reasons and to protect his family life – to be transferred from the crime unit of a hotspot district to Berlin-Köpenick as a dispatcher. At home, he grows his own vegetables to provide a healthy diet for his children. On duty, the thoroughbred detective gets bored creating the duty rosters.

Commissioner Kay Freund, who was forcibly transferred to Köpenick, loves her job. She prefers to be the first on the scene and often the last in the office. She loves structure, and social contacts are secondary at best for her. With her disciplined and responsible nature, she usually manages to keep her impulsive streak under control but also runs the risk of overstepping boundaries. She masters the interrogation room professionally and purposefully with her lightning-quick perception.

Due to a lack of trained staff, Heffler is asked to come back into the field. Heffler's friendly nature and many years of experience make the empathetic inspector a valuable, effective and irreplaceable investigator. Out of necessity, he agrees – without his daughters' knowledge.

The unlikely duo's first case begins when an unidentified man is found in the River

Spree: drugged, beaten to death and thrown into the water. It comes to light that he had only recently entered Germany and had worked illegally for a transport company. As the investigators become closer professionally, Heffler is confronted with his own past.

SOKO Wismar

In the Baltic Sea town of Wismar, the SOKO Wismar team solves complex murder cases with typical North German composure mixed with moments of witty humour. Each member of the team brings their unique skills and a fresh perspective to every investigation, as well as a few quirks.

At the helm stands Chief Inspector Jan-Hinrich Reuter, a seasoned detective whose meticulous nature and unshakeable determination make him a formidable force. Yet, beneath his cool exterior, there's one puzzle he refuses to solve – his feelings for Dr. Helene Strubeck, the forensic expert who not only uncovers crucial evidence but is also quietly determined to win his guarded heart.

Karoline Joost, a Bavarian native, is the newest member of the team. With sharp instincts and empathy, she adapts to the North German way, tackling sensitive cases with compassion. She partners with Lars Pöhlmann, a detective from Wismar who is known for his action-oriented approach. While Lars is impatient with suspects and has a certain charm with women, he's fiercely dedicated to justice, and the two make an excellent team.

Paula Moorkamp, a passionate police officer, is always there to support her colleagues, especially Eddi Jansons, a Latvian exchange officer eager to prove himself. Eddi's boundless optimism and love for fishing with Reuter make him an endearing addition to the team – though his rookie status means there's still much to learn.

With razor-sharp instincts, undeniable chemistry and a dash of humour, this SOKO team ensures that in Wismar, nothing stays hidden for long.

SOKO Vienna

Against the backdrop of Austria's capital city, the SOKO Vienna team is solving perplexing murder cases with sharp intellect and out-of-the-box thinking. Leading the team is Dr. Henriette Wolf, a brilliant and unconventional police chief known for bending the rules to grant her team the freedom they need. Her passion for shooting helps her think through challenges, and while she keeps a cool exterior, her knack for bending the law gives the team an edge in investigations.

Returning to Vienna after the breakdown of his marriage, Inspector Klaus Lechner, a former SOKO Kitzbühel officer, is a skilled investigator, using empathy to connect with criminals and victims alike to uncover hidden motives. His calm demeanour and disinterest in stereotypical masculine interests make him an intriguing, underestimated figure. Working alongside him is new recruit Major Max Herzog who brings a straightforward, justice-driven approach to the team along with a self-deprecating sense of humour.

The young, athletic and fearless Inspector Penny Lanz has worked her way up the ranks determinedly to gain her title. With her expertise in forensic science and quick wit, Penny proves time and again that she's indispensable. Completing the team is Dr. Franziska Beck, a dedicated forensic pathologist with sharp insights as well as some hilarious quirks.

Following the team as they navigate Vienna's criminal landscape, SOKO Vienna combines compelling detective work, intriguing personalities and rich human drama to offer a glimpse into the minds of those who seek justice.

Sisters of Murder

Sisters – you can't live with them, but you certainly can't live without them! Viktoria and Feli are two competitive sisters and the perfect murder investigators – Viktoria knows every murder has a motive, Feli knows every murder leaves traces.

Since birth, Viktoria and Feli have been at each other's throats but one thing they have in common is their passion for investigating murders. Viktoria is an investigative psychologist and can spot a motive a mile off. Feli is the best forensic pathologist around, with an eye for finding clues.

They could be the perfect team. But when a chance arises for Feli to become Viktoria's colleague, they begin to let their differences get in the way, as they waver between professionalism and sandpit politics. To make matters worse, Sami, Viktoria's colleague and Dusi, Feli's colleague, often stir the pot by taking sides. Along with a difficult job, the sisters are also raising Feli's son Josh with the help of Aunt Jule. When the two sisters are busy with a case, Aunt Jule takes care of Josh in their house on a picturesque fjord and shows him the tranquillity of life away from the city.

Against the backdrop of the beautiful landscape of northern Germany, Sisters of Murder finds the perfect balance between humour and drama.

SOKO Hamburg

In the bustling city of Hamburg, the SOKO team tackles complex and challenging murder cases with a mix of passion, intellect and a strong sense of justice. From the urban heart of the Elbe metropolis to the surrounding countryside, the tight-knit SOKO team of detectives pulls together to uncover the often shocking truth behind every sinister crime they investigate.

At the heart of the team is Chief Inspector Ella Hansen, whose passion for justice and steady leadership guide the team through the toughest situations. Alongside her is Lena Testorp, a sharp and empathetic new mother with a knack for connecting with witnesses and suspects. Sharp and intuitive Oskar Schütz may be unconventional, but his unmatched instincts and straightforward approach make him invaluable. Franzi Berger, a tech-savvy hacker and the team's IT expert, adds her digital expertise to every case, while Luiz Vieira dos Santos, an analytical and empathetic former undercover agent, uses his photographic memory and interrogation skills to get to the heart of the matter.

Together, they form an unlikely but effective team, each member playing a vital role in solving Hamburg's most perplexing crimes. But as they navigate the criminal underworld, personal histories and team dynamics, they find that the pursuit of justice is never straightforward. In SOKO Hamburg, it's not just about solving cases – it's about understanding people, confronting the past and facing the truth, no matter how difficult it may be.

Womaniser, bachelor and jet-setter – ‘Dr. Nice’ is no ordinary doctor. Navigating life with confidence verging on arrogance, Dr. Moritz Neiss, a handsome and successful star surgeon knows exactly how good he really is and doesn’t shy away from undermining other doctors or speaking the honest truth, even when it hurts. In the first season of this one-of-a-kind film series however, things in Moritz’s life don’t go quite to plan.

Moritz has recently been dealt some shocking news – he fathered a daughter named Lea during a one-night stand 16 years ago. To make things more complicated, the girl’s mother has recently passed away and Moritz has been asked to attend the woman’s will reading in Flensburg where he meets Charlie, the step mother of Lea. Moritz immediately puts his foot in it with Charlie and their interaction is anything but friendly. But when Charlie states her wish to legally adopt Lea, Moritz is totally on board. That is until the executor of the will tells the pair that it will take some days until the paperwork can be signed, forcing Moritz to stay in the local village where he finally meets his daughter and the two begin to bond.

Dr. Moritz Neiss starts to offend the Flensburg villagers with his egocentric nature. But his undeniable skills as a doctor have them desperate for him to take up the role of the local doctor. Taking the job would mean letting go of his go-getter lifestyle and being closer to his daughter. With a history of holding people at arm’s length, is this a chance for Moritz to finally start letting people in?

A Summer in ...

We've all dreamed of escaping our humdrum lives in search of a more exciting (and preferably sunnier) destination. In these stories, the women do just that, leaving everything behind to pursue a new life and explore unfamiliar cities. For over a decade, this romantic travel series has proven that summertime is the season to find love or rekindle old flames.

In A Summer in Italy, the latest film in the series, Billie is spending her vacation in picturesque Italy working instead of unwinding, much to the disapproval of her travel companion Hella.

A dedicated nurse with a heart of gold, Billie feels most fulfilled when helping others. Instead of lounging by the pool, she's assisting her cousin Ariane with her travel blog.

Hella, however, has different plans. She's there to reconnect with her long-lost love, Angelo. After 35 years, she stumbled upon his old love letters and is overjoyed when he invites her to Apulia.

As Billie throws herself into work, she crosses paths with Raffaele, a charming photographer still reeling from a painful break-up. He finds solace in Billie's kindness. And Billie? She begins to blossom by his side. But things grow complicated when Mateo, a charismatic lifeguard, falls for her – hard. Offering Billie swimming lessons to help her conquer her fear of water, Mateo slowly works his way into her heart, leaving her torn between two loves.

Meanwhile, Hella's world is shaken when she learns that Angelo has passed away and his sister, Sofia, was the true author of the love letters. But does it truly matter who wrote them? Or is it the love itself that counts?

Herz and Holly will see you now

Young emergency doctor Holly Sass has travelled from her home in Berlin to the picturesque town of Tangermünde in the search for her biological mother whose last known whereabouts were in the town, 32 years ago. Her path crosses with the village doctor, Dr. Katrin Herz, who's open-hearted nature has her patients queuing at the door to receive her much-sought-after diagnoses.

The two doctors strike a deal – Holly will help out at the practice to unburden Katrin. In return, Katrin will let her search for clues about her estranged mother in the practice archives and will put her in contact with the previous practice owner, Dr. Wernitz.

54 As Holly confidently starts her first consultation, she is met with outrage when she refuses to prescribe a patient a questionable medication. Beginning to question her decision to stay in Tangermünde, Holly confides in her new landlord, the carefree boat builder Gregor Seefried. While she learns more about Gregor, she finds that his seemingly laid-back life is not as it seems.

One patient in particular that has both doctors puzzled is a young mother named Dana. Suffering from extreme mood swings and memory lapses, the young woman has Holly concerned for her well-being when she finds Dana's baby abandoned in the countryside. While Katrin thinks it's likely that the drug abuse in Dana's past is to blame and tries to support Dana through her mother, Holly's gut feeling is to take action. She reports the incident to the police, and, as a result, Dana no longer allows Holly to examine her. Could Holly's own personal history be clouding her judgement?

Hotel Mondial

Sophistication, luxury and utter perfection – welcome to Hotel Mondial. This hotel promises top quality service, undeniable opulence and polite and accommodating staff who treat their guests with charm and discretion. But take a wrong turn in the hallway or press your ear against the door of a luxury suite and you'll see what's truly at the heart of the hotel – infidelity, lust and dirty secrets.

A new boss means new problems for the hotel staff at the Mondial. The devious and cold-hearted Eva de Vries wants to set new standards and knows no sympathy, which does nothing for her popularity among the staff. Only Ulli, the passionate head chef is on the new boss's side, perhaps because as a perfectionist herself, she understands Eva's drive to maintain the highest standards at the hotel, no matter the cost.

Eva is not the only new face at the hotel. Intelligent, witty and a people person, Lara is just the right fit for the manager's assistant at the hotel. But her first day at the hotel goes anything but smoothly: no one at the hotel seems to be expecting her and while getting some fresh air, she's mugged by a thief on a moped. These events seem to be a bad omen for Lara who continues to have more than her fair share of bad luck in her new role. But something important is keeping Lara at the hotel – the Hotel Mondial was the last place she saw her mother many years ago and Lara is determined to find answers.

Keeping a busy hotel running to perfection – it's enough to keep one up at night. And in this job, in a hotel that never sleeps, it does just that.

Deadlines

Are there deadlines for children, careers and capitalism? In this comedy series, four life-long friends confront the societal expectations of women their age after years of care-free – and not always innocent – fun.

Elif, Lena, Jo and Franzi grew up together in Frankfurt. Their friendship is about more than just their shared hobbies or experiences at the school they all attended: they spent the toughest years at each other's sides growing up together. They know the most intimate details about each other: when and with whom they lost their virginity and who had the worst acne. Now, with their forties fast approaching, are these chaotic women finally ready to settle down? Or will they keep pushing boundaries, one misadventure at a time?

In Season 3 of Deadlines, Jo, Elif, Lena and Franzi return, tackling the whirlwind of life's latest curveballs – from ADHD diagnoses to co-parenting struggles and unexpected romances. Lena fights to keep custody of foster child Talisa, while Elif juggles business, a love affair and a high-stakes gamble at the gym. Jo despairs over her soul-crushing spa hotel job but finds solace in therapy, while Franzi wrestles with motherhood, clashes with her co-parent and embarks on a journey of self-discovery – one that leads to a surprising dive into bondage.

As relationships unravel and secrets surface, the friends brace themselves for Elif's milestone 40th birthday. But when the celebration takes an unexpected turn, one thing remains certain: through chaos, heartbreak and hilarity, their friendship is the one deadline they'll never miss.

Superfathers

Two expectant fathers, one twist – Mathi and Luca are father and son. Both preparing for the birth of their children, they embark on a fatherhood retreat but the two could not be more different. Luca is anxious and eager to learn and hopes the retreat will prepare him for fatherhood while Mathi, ever the businessman, sees the retreat as an opportunity to woo an important client.

As years of tension come to a head, they are dramatically expelled from the camp. Lost in the forest, they're forced to work together, facing wild boars, a wolf and a wild fire they accidentally start. As survival instincts kick in, so does some long-overdue bonding. But when their pregnant partners track them down and both go into labour in the middle of the forest, Mathi and Luca may be walking away from the experience with more than they bargained for.

They are All Bonkers

Generations collide in this light-hearted mother-son comedy when Barbara, the queen bee of the works council, is ousted from her position and assigned to her son Bastian's department. Nearing retirement, Barbara finds herself struggling to adapt to modern office life in the mail order company, where video meetings, e-learning and change management are the norm. Meanwhile, eager to prove himself as an ambitious department head, Barbara's son Bastian is caught in the middle of his mother's diva-like antics and his efforts to modernise the workplace. As tensions rise, their contrasting approaches to work threaten to tear them apart. But when they uncover a secret plan to close their department, Barbara and Bastian must team up. Will they navigate the chaos, or will old-school stubbornness and modern work challenges get in their way?

That'll Be the Day

In this heartwarming film from Herzkino, Bärbel's life takes an unexpected turn when she finds a cry for help from Bangladesh hidden inside a shirt she buys for her husband, Lutz. Feeling compelled to act, Bärbel enlists the help of aid worker Noah and begins secretly corresponding and sending money to Rani in Bangladesh to help his sick son. But keeping a secret is not simple, and when her cousin sees Bärbel and Noah together, she suspects Bärbel is having an affair. As the family confronts Bärbel about the supposed infidelity, she comes clean, and faces their resentment. Despite her husband's aggressive reaction, Bärbel stands firm in her decision. But when Rani's story starts to unravel and Bärbel learns the complexity of his situation, she realises that helping him and his family is more complicated than she thought.

BFF – Best Family Forever

What does family really mean in the 21st century? Is it about shared DNA, or is it the people who stand by us through life's toughest moments? In this heartfelt and quirky comedy series, best friends Lena and Nikita are about to find out when fate throws them an unexpected curveball.

Lena, driven by her career and love for nightlife, and Nikita, longing to become a mother, face the toughest test their friendship has ever known. Alone in her bedroom, Lena is confronted by her worst nightmare – a positive pregnancy test. Meanwhile, Nikita learns that she and her partner are unable to conceive naturally. Feeling devastated, the two friends make a brave decision: they'll become co-mothers.

BFF - Best Family Forever follows Lena's pregnancy with all its ups and downs, from morning sickness to juggling her growing belly with career ambitions. Meanwhile, Nikita wrestles with feelings of jealousy and the painful reality of never carrying a child herself. When they decide to move in together, their bond is tested even further as they navigate their new roles. But just as they start to find their rhythm, new love interests shake things up, making their unconventional family dynamic even more complicated.

As Lena and Nikita face modern motherhood, love and their pursuit of happiness, they discover what it truly means to be a family today. But as the baby's arrival nears, will their bond be strong enough to withstand the pressures of their new reality, or will their biggest adventure yet tear them apart?
